REOPEN MYSTERY

MURDER CASE
Diligent efforts of John Bramley, a former convict has resulted in the reopening of the mysterious murder case of Miss Lena Parsons, who was killed near Harlan, Ky., September 7, 1920. As a result of the ex-convict's investigations since his release, indictments have been returned against John Marcum, former prison guard, and two negroes. Marcum was in charge of a prison camp in the locality of the murder at the time it was committed. It will be remembered that Dr. H. C. Winnes, a Cincinnati veterinarian, was tried for the murder, and Dr. Longnecker of this city was called as a character witness in his behalf. The doctor was released, as were two negroes tried previously on the same charge, and the affair was by way of being forgotten or just given up as one of the unsolved mysteries, until Bramley disclosed the results of his investigations.

"HEALTH NOTES"

Some bugs really do no harm; Others are pests of home and farm. But bugs that excel in criminal dope Look just like this thru a microscope.

These tiny rascals cause disease— Come in like real thugs, if you please; Boldly some, and some by stealth To steal our richest treasure—health.

Diphtheria, meningitis and "flu," We dread their very names. It's true; But we know these bugs, for they've been caught Red-handed in the midst of the ruin they've wrought.

But scarlet fever and smallpox, too, Are such crafty knaves that they leave no clue; No thumbprint, nothing, to tell the story When we hunt them down in the laboratory.

"Expose the kiddies to whooping cough, The sooner it's over the better they're off." Of measles you've heard the same no doubt; But—pneumonia sneaks in where these bugs go out.

One malleous bug we often find Which delights in making a baby blind, Another whose name you probably know, Ruins home and happiness, as you sow.

Then tell you know of the bug T. B. We have learned to fight it to some degree. With food and rest and wholesome air; We're really "getting" that bug for fair.

Now, we need a real sleuth's patience and skill To detect these bugs that plunder and kill; But we also need the co-operation Of each man and woman and child in the nation.

By the way, are you wondering who are "we?" Why, the local board of health, you see. With a doctor chief and a nurse or two Who are trying to catch these bugs for you.

With culture tube and quarantine sign,

Our purpose is far from being malign; On conserving the public health we're bent— We are on the deadly disease bug's scent.

Join with us, the disease bug fighters; Eschew the example of a few backbiters; Let us wipe out contagion from the whole U. S. We can, if we all pull together. I guess. —Local Board of Health.

ESTRAY NOTICE.

Affiant, Geo. Newton, after having been duly sworn, states that the following described animals, to-wit: One white steer, weight about 500 pounds, and no marks of any kind, taken up by him as a stray on the premises of Mrs. G. W. Newton, in Fulton County Ky., about 2 miles east of Hickman, Ky., on the Dresden Road, that he has not altered or defaced any mark of any kind on said animal, nor has he placed any mark of any kind on said animal, and that he values said animal at $20 and T. C. Kelly, a resident and property owner of Fulton County, Ky., being duly sworn, appraises said animal at $20 and I, Chas. D. Nugent, Judge of Fulton County Court, value same at $20.00, wherefore it is ordered that this notice be recorded by the County Court clerk in a book kept for that purpose and said Clerk is directed to furnish an attested copy of this notice to The Hickman Courier for publication, and to post one on the court house door. Witness my hand, this Dec. 5, 1922.

Chas. D. Nugent, Judge

Fulton County Court.

Attest Copy.

O. C. Henry, Clerk.

Odd Argentine Custom.

When a seventh son is born in Argentina the President of the republic becomes his godfather, according to custom, so that the President always has quite a number of godsons, as large families are the rule in Argentina.
